this book offers a fresh account of the anzac myth and the bittersweet emotional experience of gallipoli tourists challenging the straightforward view of the anzac obsession as a kind of nationalistic military halloween it shows how transnational developments in tourism and commemoration have created the conditions for a complex dissonant emotional experience of sadness humility anger pride and empathy among anzac tourists drawing on the in depth testimonies of travellers from australia and new zealand mckay shines a new and more complex light on the history and cultural politics of the anzac myth as well as making a ground breaking empirically based intervention into the culture wars this book offers new insights into the global memory boom and transnational developments in backpacker tourism sports tourism and dark or dissonant tourism the british led mediterranean expeditionary force that attacked the ottoman empire at gallipoli in 1915 was a multi national affair including australian new zealand irish french and indian soldiers ultimately a failure the campaign ended with the withdrawal of the allied forces after less than nine months and the unexpected victory of the ottoman armies and their german allies in britain the campaign led to the removal of churchill from his post as first lord of the admiralty and the abandonment of the plan to attack germany via its soft underbelly in the east thereafter it was largely forgotten on a national level commemorated only in specific localities linked to the campaign in post war turkey by contrast the memory of gallipoli played an important role in the formation of a turkish national identity celebrating both the ordinary soldier and the genius of the republic s first president mustafa kemal the campaign served a similarly important formative role in both australia and new zealand where it is commemorated annually on anzac day for the southern irish meanwhile the bitter memory of service for the king in a botched campaign was forgotten for decades shaped initially by the imperatives of war time and the needs of the grief stricken and the bereft the memory of gallipoli has been re made time and again over the last century for the turks an inspirational victory for many on the allied side a glorious and romantic defeat for others still an episode best forgotten gallipoli has meant different things to different people serving by turns as an occasion of sincere and heartfelt sorrow an opportunity for separatist and feminist protest and a formative influence in the forging of national identities dust donkeys and delusion examines and clinically debunks the myth that has grown up around private john simpson kirkpatrick the so called man with the donkey the quintessential australian hero of gallipoli while the various elements of the simpson myth have now become popularly accepted as history dust donkeys and delusion shows clearly based on historical documents both official and unofficial that almost every word ever spoken or written about simpson following his death is false gallipoli the mere name summons the story of this well known campaign of the first world war and the story of gallipoli where in august 1915 the allied forces made their last valiant effort against the turks is one of infamous might have beens if only the allies had held out a little longer pushed a little harder had better luck gallipoli might have been the decisive triumph that knocked the ottoman empire out of the first world war but the story is just that author rhys crawley tells us a story not only was the outcome at gallipoli not close but the operation was flawed from the start and an inevitable failure a painstaking effort to set the historical record straight climax at gallipoli examines the performance of the allies mediterranean expeditionary force from the beginning of the gallipoli campaign to the bitter end crawley reminds us that in 1915 the second year of the war the allies were still trying to adapt to a new form of warfare with static defense replacing the maneuver and offensive strategies of earlier british doctrine in the attempt both the mef at gallipoli and the british expeditionary force on the western front aimed for too much and both failed to explain why crawley focuses on the operational level of war in the campaign scrutinizing planning command mobility fire support interservice cooperation and logistics his work draws on unprecedented research into the files of military organizations across the united kingdom and australia the result is a view of the gallipoli campaign unique in its detail and scope as well as in its conclusions a book that looks past myth and distortion to the facts and the truth of what happened at this critical juncture in twentieth century history wmr saw action as infantry on gallipoli followed by mounted action in sinai and palestine to the end of the war text contains much detail plus roll of honour a list of those wounded and decorations abebooks website our friend the enemy is the first detailed history of the gallipoli campaign at anzac since charles bean s official history viewed from both sides of the wire and described in first hand accounts australian captain herbert layh recounted that as they approached the beach on 25 april that once we were behind cover the turks turned their fire on us and gave us a lively 10 minutes a poor chap next to me was hit three times he begged me to shoot him but luckily for him a fourth bullet got him and put him out of his pain later that day sergeant charles saunders a new zealand engineer described his first taste of battle the turks were entrenched some 50 100 yards from the edge of the face of the gully and their machine guns swept the edges line after line of our men went up some lines didn t take two paces over the crest when down they went to a man and on came another line gunner recep trudal of the turkish 27th regiment wrote of the fierce turkish counter attack on 19 may designed to push the anzac s back into the sea it started at morning prayer call time and then it went on and on never stopped you know there was no break for eating or anything attack was our command that was what the pasha said once he says attack you attack and you either die or you survive the editor invited readers of everyman to send him personal accounts of the war in not more than three thousand words in less than three weeks ha had received over three hundred narratives this is a selection included are the minutes or procès verbal of the council from its first meeting paris january 16 1920 to the session the budget for the 3d financial period 1921 in 1920 no 7 1921 no 9 1923 no 1 of each year statements of the present situations as regards international engagements registered with the secretariat saar basin periodical and other reports and papers reports on the financial reconstruction of austria and of hungary and many other reports and papers why was the allied naval assault of february march 1915 so unsuccessful did the ottoman turks have knowledge of the allied landings of 25 april 1915 and did sir ian hamilton the overall commander of the allied forces at gallipoli really make a mistake in his intervention at suvla these questions and the key issue of why the ottoman turks won the 1915 gallipoli campaign or why the allies lost it have never been satisfactorily answered this new history of the gallipoli campaign aims to answer them while also telling the story of what actually happened through the voices of british australian and turkish soldiers in order to properly understand the bloody events of 1915 tim travers is the first historian of gallipoli to use the general staff ottoman archives in ankara to tell the other side of the story wide ranging research in the turkish archives as well as those in australia britain france and new zealand plus a significant newly discovered german source has produced a startling new interpretation of the 1915 conflict moving from a study of the western front tim travers has produced a challenging analysis of the enduring mysteries of the gallipoli campaign in this memoir spanning nine decades lieutenant colonel c f jerram 1882 1969 of the royal marines recounts his life and military service through both world wars jerram describes in candid detail his late 19th century childhood in devon and cornwall the late victorian and edwardian royal navy the royal navy s far east station a traditional corps of marines the gallipoli campaign the world war i western front and the interwar and world war ii years his experience and insight convey two fundamental lessons know thy profession and look after those for whom you are responsible an essay by the editor based on other sources provides a broader perspective on jerram whose approach to professional military service is still pertinent today
